Customer Support

Flexible

Supports All Document Formats

GR8 People wanted a parsing solution to offer a diversified product to its clients. Their goal was to provide quality candidate recommendations to recruiters by streamlining the hiring process.

They were looking for a solution that could extract candidate information from resumes into fields created for skills, education, experience, qualifications, contact details, and much more.

GR8 People wanted the solution to work at the speed of business and parse resumes in real-time. The solution also needed to be cost-effective and agile to match the unique requirements of their customers.

They found RChilli, which met all these requirements.

Simplifying Resume/Job Data through RChilli

At times, the candidates send resumes in a complicated format. RChilli's resume parser helps GR8 People extract key information from a binary document (word, pdf, rtf, doc, docx, or plain text) that typically includes name, address, email, telephone (at a mini- mum) and the full resume text. This makes it easier for their AI technology to pick up match- ing to automatically decide which candidate should be placed in front of the recruiters.

GR8 People uses a special RChilli endpoint to extract "concepts" from a job description for their recommendation engine.

A "bulk" resume uploader makes large scale resume processing easy on their customer's recruitment teams.

With real-time parsing, the GR8 People plat- form can make quick and relevant candidate recommendations to recruiters.

Enjoying Unlimited Benefits with RChilli

GR8 People uses the extracted text in various parts of the application. The plain text is also used to index the document for sourcing/ searching.

While parsing a job, related concepts are passed out to their search servers making "recommendations" on leads/candidates that fit the attributes of the job.

They now have a consistent and scalable mechanism to get fielded data from a resume.

There is a sudden boost in the recruiters' productivity because they can easily understand the structured resume data.

Better indexing of the document for sourcing/searching

Relevant "recommendations" on leads/candidates

A consistent and scalable mechanism

Increase in the recruiters' productivity
